The bank returns for the week show considerable increase in bullion and in unemployed notes. The bullion amounted to £9,634,167 and the notes to £3,606,815.

The Paris Pays contains the following explanation relative to the firing on an English gun-boat at Yenikale: "We believe the affair has been explained to the satisfaction of both parties. The gun-boat being about to pass the Straits, a gun loaded with powder was fired, according to common usage, as a signal. The captain explained to the commandant of the recommended. A small steamer is to be despatched, as the Secretary of the Navy recommends, to survey the Guano Islands in the South Pacific. The Secretary of the Navy and the public generally were amazed at the failure of Com. Mervine to execute his orders for the examination of those Islands. He went within sight of one of them-New Nantucket-remained only four and a half hours in view of it, and reisued to permit the agent of the Guano Company to land, even with volunteers. The other Island he did not attempt to visit. His ship was too large for the service, which can be better performed by a small steamer. Congress passed an act at the late session, protecting the rights of our citizens in such Guano Islands as they may discover, and the New York Company claiming the Islands above referred to, have executed satisfactory bonds, in compliance with the act, for the fulfilment of their obligations under it. From Dr. Bartlett's Anglo-Saxon. COMING ROUND BY DEGREES.

Guano Islands.—The Pacific squadron is to be in-

Brown was a magazine-writer of what is sometimes called the fast school. His were the veriest bubbles of the current literature of the day, the merest froth of the trifles which are skimmed rather than read t the busy world of pleasure. He touched-I borrow the beautiful language of a fashionable reviewer-he touched the passing follies of the day with a light and facile pen, and people smirked over his articles in a manner pleasant to witness. My opinion is, that his abilities were—in short, not first-rate, but he used them very ably. He never wrote in men's language for a lady's magazine, and never threw away the delicate wit which suited its pages upon the middle-aged gentlemen who prefer scandal and satire.

So Brown was accustomed to meditate; but it was not until very recently that anything came of it. It was after reading of important events taking place in Spain, that he determined to lay his scene there, Spain was the land of romance; his characters should be the men now swaying its destinies, his time the present day. "I will read up the history," he said; The British Government has, at the request of and with Gil Blus, Mr. Borrow, and the Tales of Cyrus W. Field, Esq., of New York, ordered a steamer the Alhambra, I think something may be done." to be fitted out under efficient officers to examine Familiarity with modern Spanish customs was, howthoroughly the coast of Ireland and Newfoundland, ever, indispensable, and Brown's knowledge of that and to sound across the Atlantic between these parts subject was limited.
